Sally Ride
Sally Ride was the first American woman in space. She is the director of the California Space Institute and organizes programs and classes to help inspire girls to take an interest in science and aeronautics.