Shakespeare's Use of Imagery in Macbeth

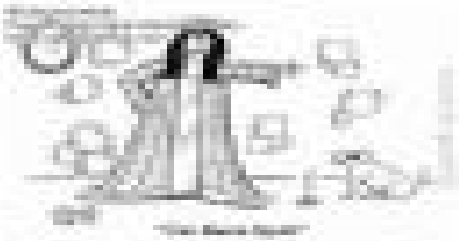
In this program from just twelve, Shakespeare uses language to create a specific mood. The imagery he weaves creates images with words in a way to draw the reader in.

Below are a few examples of imagery and figurative language used throughout play. Fill out the chart below.



Quote from the play	Draw a picture of what Shakespeare's words are LITERALLY showing	Explain what Shakespeare is really trying to say in this quote
"Look like the innocent flower, But be the serpent under it" (Scene 5)
"Is this a dagger which I see before me, The handle toward my hand?" (Scene 4)
"Could an enemy weep this to kill, Shook hands and parted?" (Scene 4)
