Read this short story.

The Joke

Sir William Thompson was very deaf, but he always pretended that he could hear everything. One evening he [illegible] several friends to dinner. While they were sitting at the table, one of the friends [illegible] a funny story. Everyone laughed. William [illegible] very loudly too. Then, he said, "That [illegible] a very funny joke, but I [illegible] a funnier one. Would you like to hear it?" They all said they would, so William [illegible] his story. When it [illegible], everyone laughed louder than before. William [illegible] happily. But he [illegible] the reason for their laughter. He [illegible] the same story.

Ten of the verbs in that story are printed in italics. Complete the following table. Write in column 1 each of the verbs in italics. Write the subject of each verb in column 2. Write the object (if there is one) in column 3, and in column 4 put [illegible] if the verb is transitive, or [illegible] if it is intransitive. We have filled in the columns for the first verb for you.

Subject	Verb	Object	Kind of Verb
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	T