Adverbs of Frequency II

Some adverbs tell us the frequency with which the action of the verb in the sentence happens. In other words, they tell us how often the subject of the sentence does something. Practice using adverbs of frequency by writing a complete sentence using the given prompt.

1. Tell about something you always do on Saturday mornings.

I always go to baseball practice on Saturday mornings.

2. Tell about something you sometimes do on weekends.

3. Tell about something you never do in the morning.

4. Tell about something you rarely do on a school night.

5. Tell about something you frequently do during the summer.

6. Tell about something you usually do in the evening.

7. Tell about something you often do after school.

8. Tell about something you seldom do with your parents.

9. Tell about something you never do at school.

10. Tell about something you sometimes do in the early morning.
