

Which writing is better? Why?

Poem #1-

Jason

Energetic, smart, funny, athletic

Son of Cheryl and Bert

Lover of football, basketball, animals

Who feels happy, bored, sad, and anxious

Who needs a life, friends, to travel

Who gives advice, food, help

Who fears detention, lions, my little cousin

Who likes to see the sun go out, Mission Impossible 3, Mount Everest

Resident of Saint Joseph, Missouri

Elmsford

Poem #2-

Micheal

Loony Toon Joke Maker, Loudmouth jabber-box, A Clever Book-Worm, SportyB-Ball Player

Son of Rambling Raymondo and the Lovely Lorraine

Lover of Olive Garden Salad with tasty red onions, Friday at 3:00 as I am leave school, and designer comfy t-shirts from American Eagle

Who feels strong and determined with his family behind me, weak at the sight of a blue-eyed girl asking questions, and lonely when I am in a class with no friends

Who needs a Pepsi to start my day, an ice-pack after a hard hitting football practice, and A's on a progress report to keep my mom and dad satisfied and content

Who gives pencils to those that need them in math class, home-made presents to my nieces and nephews for their birthday, and clothes to my buddies if they have spent the night and weren't actually planning to.

Who fears mean teachers that gives lots of homework, high places like the majestic Rocky Mountains, and planes that go through turbulent weather in the middle of the night

Who would like to see New Orleans at Mardi Gras, Bill Self sit down and talk basketball with me, and Grandma & Grandpa Lakes sit down and tell