Reading involves different levels of thinking. Help increase your child's reading comprehension by asking a variety of questions that foster thinking skills. Here are some types of questions you can ask:

- Who/What? (questions involving recall of facts in the story)
- Why? (questions that ask the reader to analyze the facts)
- What would happen if . . . ? (questions that ask the reader to predict an outcome)
- Should the character have . . . ? (questions that ask the reader to evaluate what happened)
