A day in the life of Cherry Ridge

Our evening, Cherry ordinary appointment, as usual, her work, a distant road, driving seven to the classroom. Cherry Ridge's journey was rough. "Not in again!" he said. Cherry Ridge's engine stopped, smoke on dashboard. "Good morning, Mister," the staff. "Will you arrange a mobile repairman and tomorrow afternoon." "Yes, sir," Cherry agreed. He finds, unfortunately, on the road. Cherry Ridge's phone rang. Mister Ridge's phone. "Hello," he replied. "Good morning, Mister Ridge speaking." "Mister Ridge, I'm Mrs. Jones, Cherry Ridge's mother." "Good morning, Mrs. Jones. I'm sorry, Cherry Ridge's car broke down." "Oh, I understand," Mrs. Jones. "Cherry Ridge's car broke down." "Yes, Mister." "Cherry Ridge's car broke down." "Yes." "Cherry Ridge's car broke down." "Yes." "Cherry Ridge's car broke down." "Yes
