Onomatopoeia	A word that describes a sound	Tracked the left boating beam of the horse-leafs rigging shot.
Alliteration	Repeated letter sounds at the start of two or more words in a phrase.	We love learning a lesson
Hyperbole	Exaggeration for a fact.	We ever were hollows of mothers. We had like mouldy hay.
Imagery	Use of good adjectives and techniques to make sheet images in a reader's head.	A cool affine mutilated and breathed-stained sea-stair.
Repetition	Repeating of a sound or message in a piece of text.	A red-cold-bony spine marching. Rumbling marching. King Gallagher's bell-spine marching, up to the old hot-door.
Simile	A comparison that lies like or are	We ever were hollows of mothers. We had like mouldy hay.
Metaphor	The state of suggest that one thing is something totally different.	The mean was a grandly golden-breathed-deadly noise.
Personification	Making something monsumed sound like a person.	And the noise crowded by like years.
Assonance	Repeated-vowel sounds that create a sound effect or rhythm.	Anthropologist or man-eaters in the daylight forebeam is her dark-wave.
Emotive language	Words used for emotional impact.	We reach the dead man-eaters.