

The external physical world as it really claimed to exist.

(Its only a model, the real entities are ineffable and the exact nature of things can only be known through observation.)

The world of empiricism or scientific realism appears as an emergent property or consequence of this state of affairs in the external physical world.

The Pleroma of God with his full radiance.

Ideas in the Platonic realm.