

How to Draw A tiger

The face is based on two circles, one large and a small one for the nose. A big circle makes the shoulders and chest. A circle the same size makes the hip. Draw a curving line for the back and a curving line for the belly. Start the legs as "bones" with circles for the joints, so you get the position right. then draw the flesh around them. the face is a few lines that curve. the tail goes almost to the ground then curves up. the ears are rounded.

Don't over do the stripes.

Our tiger has three stripes on each side of the face, and three over each eye. the stripes are unover on the body and curve around. the legs only have stripes on the top half.
