

Name: _____

Date: _____

Your and You're

These words are homophones. They are pronounced the same, but have different meanings.

- your shows possession or ownership
- you're is a contraction for "you are"

Examples:

- Your parents can help you with your homework.
- "You're too old to order off the kid's menu," The man said.

Directions: Fill in the blank in each sentence with your or you're.

1. I can't wait to see _____ new car!
2. "_____ going to be so proud of _____ brother. He got accepted into college!" Mom shouted.
3. "Let's go. You don't want to be late on _____ first day of school," Dad said as he shook his awake.
4. It's nice to let _____ sister borrow _____ things.
5. "_____ tall enough to ride the rollercoaster," Myle said. "I'll hold _____ popcorn while you ride."
6. "Always remember to do _____ homework, brush _____ teeth, and eat _____ vegetables," Grandpa advised.
7. The principal said, "_____ class will enjoy the field trip. Don't forget to take some photographs while _____ there!"
8. _____ going to have a good time at the party. Remember not to break _____ curfew, you should be home by 9:00 pm.
9. "Let me know if _____ interested in auditioning for the school talent show. You'll need _____ own costumes and music," the director stated.
10. "_____ grandma called. She said she hopes _____ having a good day," mom said.