

1) Read the title and identify the target audience.

2) In which case can parents with his children use the phone more?

3) What do you think the text is about?

Have you ever noticed your kids use the phone more?

Do not feel a little "ugh?" is that not interesting. More? How the phone does? The called "parental" it that's your response then you are probably better than one. Well, because for some children things are very different.

In some ways of course. The great parental stress. It's all too easy for some teenagers to disappear into worlds of their own, and simply forget how to communicate. It can happen in a flash. One minute they're happy and outward going. The next minute locked in solitary. Most proud of watching themselves go for the weekly 300 text.

That's no longer children, not adults, just teenagers. Their bodies are changing. Their feet make unusual noises when their parents walk after them. It's difficult to cope with. It's hard watching the boy about you. It's hard to see that you cannot see it. It's hard to watch to change in your child.

During this period they will often say they have no friends and don't want any. In fact, they are not desperate to join a group. They are just, like the others. My son is his group. My daughter isn't desperate enough.

So the most important thing you can do is to get them talking. Often all it requires is a little encouragement, or responding in the spirit of a little bit of teenage mystery, encourage your children to get some friends right.

They may start with themselves. I guess twenty-five times a day. But that's not a driving force. It's about a thousand. You can show him how to get those in spirit or go to the cinema and see some of them.

But remember, a thousand words conversation with your children every day can help them become more open to other people's words.

3) Answer the following questions with reference to the text.

- The writer thinks that some parents complain about their children's use of mobile phones but they are not aware of the fact that they are better than other parents. Can you explain or what way they are better?
- What advice does the writer give to help teenagers to cope themselves?
- What are the qualities suggested by the writer to solve the problem?

3) Writing

Write an article in a newspaper in which you disagree with the writer's opinion and mention the negative effects mobile phones can have on teenagers.

4) Language study