

1) Read the title and identify the target audience.

2) In which case can parents with his children use the phone more?

3) What do you think the text is about?

Have you ever noticed your kids use the phone more?

Do not feel a little "ugh?" is that one annoying "Mom! how the phone does? I'm calling myself off" if that's your reaction then you are probably better than one. Well, because for some children phones are very different.

In some ways of course. The great parental concern is do the kids use the phone to connect with words of their own, and simply forget how to communicate. It can happen in a flash. One minute they're happy and outgoing going. The next minute locked in solitary. Mom would be watching television 2 for the nearby 300 line.

That's no longer children, not adults, not teenagers. Their bodies are changing. Their feet make physical impulses when their young minds often find it difficult to cope with. It's hard watching the boy about what is normal age that can almost get it. But for them to change is wonderful.

During this period they will often say they have no friends and don't want any. In fact, they are not desperate to join a group. "I'm too fat. I'm too skinny." "My hair is too green. My clothes aren't fashionable enough."

So the most important thing you can do is to get them talking. Often all it requires is a little encouragement, or commenting on the quality of a funny bit of language they're using, encourage your children to use some words more.

They may speak with television 2 another twenty-five times a day but there is a strong need to discuss it afterwards. "You seem like you're trying to get those in shape or go to the cinema and see some things together."

But remember, a fifteen-minute conversation with your children every day can help them become more open to their own world.

3) Answer the following questions with reference to the text.

- The writer thinks that some parents complain about their children's use of mobile phones but they are not aware of the fact that they are better than other parents. Can you explain or what way they are better?
- What advice does the writer give to help parents to cope with their children's?
- What are the qualities suggested by the writer to solve the problem?

3) Writing

Write an article in a newspaper in which you disagree with the writer's opinion and mention the negative effects mobile phones can have on teenagers.

4) Language study