

1) Read the title and identify the target audience.

2) In which case can parents with his children use the phone more?

3) What do you think the text is about?

Have you ever noticed your kids use the phone more?

Do not feel a little "ugh?" is that one annoying "Mom! how the phone does? I've called them all day" if that's your reaction then you are probably better than one. Well, because for some children phones are very different.

In some ways of course. The great parental stressor. It's not too early for some teenagers to discover "no words of their own", and simply forget how to communicate. It can happen in a flash. One minute they're happy and outward going. The next minute locked in solitary. Mom would be watching television 2 for the nearby 300 line.

That's no longer children, not adults, just teenagers. Their bodies are changing. Their feet make unusual noises when their pants make other kind of sounds. It's hard to explain that they should wait to school age. They can't control and it's hard to wait to change in your school.

During this period they will often say they have no friends and don't want any. In fact, they are not desperate to join a group. "I'm too fat. I'm too skinny." "My hair is too green. My clothes aren't fashionable enough."

So the most important thing you can do is to get them talking. Often all it requires is a little encouragement, or commenting on the quality of a fashion tip of teenage magazine, encourage your children to get some friends right.

They may start with television 2 another twenty-five lines. But at least there is a shared space where it's obvious. You can show them how to talk in paragraphs or points or go to the cinema and see movies together.

But remember, a fifteen-minute conversation with your children every day can help them become more open to other people's words.

3) Answer the following questions with reference to the text.

- The writer thinks that some parents complain about their children's misuse of mobile but they are not aware of the fact that they are better than other parents. Can you explain or what way they are better?
- What advice would you give to help teenagers to enjoy themselves?
- What are the qualities suggested by the writer to solve the problem?

4) Writing

Write an article in a newspaper in which you disagree of the writer's opinion and mention the negative effects mobile/telephone usage causes.

4) Language study
