

2 children are playing nicely together. Another child and their friend want to ruin their game so they start teasing the two children, telling them that they are stupid and useless.

A child volunteers to sing in front of the class. Most children show respect but some children laugh.