

Energy

- Most energy is provided by carbohydrates and fats
 - Cells rely on a supply of energy to maintain their activities
- Nutrients that supply energy are lipids, carbohydrates, and proteins
 - Broken down by digestion to their subunits, which are used during cellular respiration
 - Energy from these subunits is released and is captured in ATP