

What is a Cell

What is a cell?

All living things are made up of _____. Each cell is a sort of bag made from a sort of skin called a _____. The inside of the cell is _____ and jelly-like. You can't see them just using your eyes. You need a _____.

A cell can be considered the smallest part of an _____ that can _____ on its own. Some organisms have only _____ cell, while more complicated organisms are made out of lots of cells. All cells have a _____, which separates them from the outside world. The membrane _____ the cell and allows the cell to be selective about what is allowed _____. (Click next at bottom of web page.)

Are all cells the same?

Plant cells are _____ than animal cells. Plant cells in a _____ are different to those in the stem or in the _____. Animal cells, including the cells in our bodies, are all sorts of different _____ and sizes. Different cells _____ different things.

Give examples of two different types of cells and their jobs below.

1.

2.

Despite all the differences between types of cells, there are also _____. All cells have _____. All cells contain _____ for storing information and _____ for building proteins. (Click next at bottom of web page.)