Good citizens

Doing Their Part

Good citizens help in many ways. Paul Newman's company gave over $250 million to people in need.

People who live in a community are called citizens. There are many ways a person can show he is a good citizen. He obeys, or follows, the laws. When citizens obey the laws, the community can be safe, healthy, and fair. A good citizen cares for the earth. He might clean up trash or plant trees. A good citizen also helps others. He might collect food for people in need or help at an animal shelter.

Paul Newman was a well-known actor. He showed others how to be good citizens. He started his own food company in 1952. Paul Newman gave all the money made by that business to help those in need. He started camps for very sick boys and girls. His camps still help thousands of children each
