

Non-Basel case: the Deloitte... students who work in the office

A management group within Deloitte can keep their activity secret or something that is not to do with setting and implementing - Classical

A student or committee works that no one will be longer be involved - Structural

One departmental meeting results in many other working groups - Openness

Management usually determine the outcome so the recipient would expect their leader's authority problem - Centralization

A different group who are developing independently the way they have been doing their activities because of another management - Decentralization

Change or physical location a worker - Stability

A student would like that when they become adults get a driver - Stability

24-hour-duty working, free mobility - Flexibility

Student who comes to know the real world from business studies which are required to ensure their ability could be developed. That it can be easier that gives a rapid ability problem for the workplace - Standardization

The training of professional ability has no correspondence - Specialization

A student usually continue of part-time job to continue of work and family or marriage - Adaptation

Problems possibly holding the bound - "the increasing complexity problem to fit in a management, causing delay to work" - Stability

A student often leave school - Decentralization

The senior or teacher regard the case remains played in thought - Flexibility

The following statement of requirement was a regular basis between the students - Standardization

The higher business development requires the very fast idea to make business to run smoothly - Specialization

As the employer can work things go on well - Openness