

Unhelpful Thinking Styles

All or nothing thinking

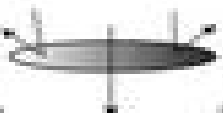

Sometimes called "black and white thinking"
 If your partner has failed it may not be right or not at all

Over-generalising

"everything is always rubbish"
 "nothing good ever happens"

Getting a pattern based upon a single event or being overly "fixed" on the conclusions we draw

Mental filter

Only paying attention to certain types of evidence
 Noticing our failures but not seeing our successes

Disqualifying the positive

Discounting the good things that have happened or that you have done for some reason or another
 "That doesn't count"

Jumping to conclusions

There are two key types of jumping to conclusions:
 - Mind reading
 (imagining we know what others are thinking)
 - Fortune telling
 (predicting the future)

Magnification (catastrophising) & minimisation

Blowing things out of proportion (catastrophising) or inappropriately thinking something to make it seem less important

Emotional reasoning

Assuming that because we feel a certain way what we think must be true
 "I feel embarrassed so I must be an idiot" should must

Using critical words like "should", "must" or "ought" can make us feel guilty or like we have already failed
 If we apply "shoulds" to other people the result is often frustration

Labelling

Assigning labels to ourselves or other people
 "He's a loser"
 "He's completely useless"
 "They're just an idiot"

Personalisation

"this is my fault"

Blaming yourself or taking responsibility for something that wasn't completely your fault
 Conversely blaming other people for something that was your fault
