- I. Stress vs. Stimulus
- Stressors—triggers outside of you.
 - Stress—the way you respond to the triggers.
- II. What is Stress?
- A basic human survival mechanism left over from our primal past “moto” where we could best respond to perceived dangers by either fighting or fleeing.
 - The body’s non-specific physiological and biochemical responses to stressors.
 - Long-term consequences of being “too stressed for too long”:

a. Digestion	e. Gastrointestinal problems
b. Reproduction	f. Heart disease
c. Immune system	g. Kidney disease
d. Endocrine system
 - Any change requiring you to adapt.
 - Unpleasant and Necessary.
 - Stress can be Positive:
 - A source of high energy and increased awareness.
 - Some stress actually improves performance. But too much impedes performance.

III. OMG, you've stressed right now...What do you DO?

IV. Stress-Reducing Techniques

A. BREATHING

- When you're stressed, you tend to breath from your chest in short, shallow breaths. Take a深吸, give quiet somewhere and breathe deeply, from your diaphragm.
- Use bubbles to practice good and healthy breathing: they help you control your breathing, and you don't stay mad while you blow a bubble!
- Practice breathing bubbles right now with your workshop friends.
