

Comp. Spanish TV?

'It has become my absolute favourite way to relax. I go to work, come home and a good book.' Carole Miller

Below is a selection of comments about Spanish TV from various English speakers. (Go to <http://www.espanol.com>) Do you agree with them? Can you improve? Be precise!

- I was watching some great old film, but they were being continuously interrupted by a noise.
- Spain and maybe the rest of Europe is in dire need of DVD (digital video recorder). Not only can you skip past the scenes you progress if the record, you can progress if the record after a few shows as that one does? because it allow to television.
- What should people abroad (and want to watch British TV in Spain?
- Are you telling me that people come to Spain to watch British TV? (mainly to purchase satellite)
- What's happened to BBC in Television? Previously (on TDT at least), you always had the choice of V.O. or dubbed dubbing. Now it's only the latter.
- Does Spanish TV only have those dubs? It always sounds like the instructions, you talk, you think and someone for everything else.
- I live in Spain, where the TV is crap. Do I watch Fox, CNN, BBC, etc., anything that is not crap Spanish TV (TVE) is good sometimes.

Some questions.....

1. How often, if at all, do you watch TVC-ally?
2. What are your favourite programmes? Must include programmes?
3. If you could change anything about TV in your country, what would it be?
4. Do you ever watch TV when you're abroad (e.g. in your hotel room)? How does it compare to TV in your own country?
5. How do you think technology controls other people's viewing habits?
6. What do you prefer when watching a foreign language film? A programme? Subtitles or dubbing?
