

Plants

The illustration features several distinct botanical elements:

- At the top left, a large, deeply lobed leaf with prominent veins.
- To its right, a circular, textured structure, possibly a seed or fruit cross-section.
- Below the large leaf, a smaller, more delicate leaf with a different vein pattern.
- In the center, a cluster of small, round fruits or seeds.
- At the bottom left, two small, upright, cylindrical structures, possibly seed pods or young plants.
- At the bottom right, a large, oval-shaped, textured object, likely a seed or fruit.

The illustrations
 show the various parts of the plant and how they are used in the kitchen.
 The leaves are
 used for tea,
 the fruit for
 jam, and the
 seeds for oil.
 The roots and stems are used for medicinal purposes.
