READING SKILLS

Frederic Potter was born in London in 1886. His interests in model railways began early. "Potter's first hobby, the model-making, drawing and painting animals (especially rabbits, mice, frogs and birds), took off his own hobby, the model railway and from 1904, he was busy building his first model railway in his bedroom. He had three railway adventures.

When Potter was sixteen, his father moved his family to the Lake District. He was then at "The Lake" in "The Lake of Windermere". The father's hobby was to build a model railway. "The Lake of Windermere" was the first model railway that Potter built. He was then at "The Lake of Windermere" when he was sixteen.

Potter, loved the model railway and the model railway, so he was at the Lake of Windermere, and he was at the Lake of Windermere.

He spent his days in the model railway, drawing and painting animals, and he was at the Lake of Windermere. He was then at the Lake of Windermere, and he was at the Lake of Windermere.

He was then at the Lake of Windermere, and he was at the Lake of Windermere. He was then at the Lake of Windermere, and he was at the Lake of Windermere.
