

CITY MOUSE AND COUNTRY MOUSE

One day City Mouse takes a bus to the country to see his cousin, Country Mouse. He can see cows and horses in the fields. He can see ponds and fences and birds. The bus stops at a farm. Country Mouse is waiting. "Hello, Cousin! I'm happy to see you," says Country Mouse.

1. How does City Mouse go to the country?
2. What can he see in the fields?
3. Where does the bus stop?

But soon City Mouse is not happy. "I'm hungry. There is no food! And it's cold here in the barn," he says. "Let's go to the city. You can live in my flat. There is food and it's warm. Country Mouse touches his cold nose. "Yes, let's go!" he says.

1. Who is hungry?
2. Where are they going?
3. What does Country Mouse touch?

The two cousins take the bus to the city. They can see a restaurant, a skating rink and a museum. City Mouse says, "here is our stop!" They get off the bus and go into a flat. There is milk and there is cheese on a big table. City Mouse and Country Mouse are happy.

1. What can they see in the city?
2. Where is the cheese?
3. How do they feel?

But before they can eat, a big cat comes in. The cat wants to eat them. They have to hide behind the fridge. Country Mouse says, "Now I'm hungry, and a cat wants to eat me! I'm going back to the country!"

1. Who comes in?
2. What does the cat want?
3. Where do they hide?
4. Where is Country Mouse going back?
