

NCES
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Helping Children Cope With Loss, Grief, and Care After the September 11 Attacks

The September 11 attacks have shocked the nation and the world. In the days and weeks following the attacks, children and their families may experience a range of emotions, including fear, confusion, and sadness. Children may also experience changes in their behavior, such as increased anxiety, withdrawal, or aggression. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.

Helping Children

Children may experience a range of emotions and behaviors in the days and weeks following the September 11 attacks. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time. Children may experience changes in their behavior, such as increased anxiety, withdrawal, or aggression. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.

1. Children may experience a range of emotions and behaviors in the days and weeks following the September 11 attacks. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.
2. Children may experience changes in their behavior, such as increased anxiety, withdrawal, or aggression. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.
3. Children may experience a range of emotions and behaviors in the days and weeks following the September 11 attacks. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.
4. Children may experience changes in their behavior, such as increased anxiety, withdrawal, or aggression. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.

Helping Children Cope

Children may experience a range of emotions and behaviors in the days and weeks following the September 11 attacks. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time. Children may experience changes in their behavior, such as increased anxiety, withdrawal, or aggression. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.

1. Children may experience a range of emotions and behaviors in the days and weeks following the September 11 attacks. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.
2. Children may experience changes in their behavior, such as increased anxiety, withdrawal, or aggression. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.
3. Children may experience a range of emotions and behaviors in the days and weeks following the September 11 attacks. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.
4. Children may experience changes in their behavior, such as increased anxiety, withdrawal, or aggression. It is important for parents and caregivers to provide support and reassurance to children during this difficult time.