

SOPHOMORE VOCABULARY WORDS*

LESSON 1: OUR EVOLVING LANGUAGE

1. Acronym (noun) A word formed from the first letter of each word in a series
Acronymic (adjective)
 - PAC is an acronym for political action committee
 - NAFTA is the acronymic title for the North American Free Trade Agreement
2. Affix (noun) A prefix or suffix
(verb) To attach a part to the beginning or end of a word;
(verb) To attach something
 - The word reappearance has two affixes, re- and -ance
 - We often affix -ed to a verb to form its past tense.
 - To help prevent birds from crashing into the windows, affix noticeable stickers to the glass
3. Coinage (noun) The invention of new words or an invented word or phrase
(noun) The making of metal coins; metal currency
 - The spread of computer technology has resulted in the coinage of words such as blog and cyberculture. . . .
 - Another recent coinage is the verb to google, as in "I googled the author of the article to find out his background and credentials."
 - More zinc than copper is now used in the coinage of U.S. pennies.
4. Colloquial (adjective) Typical of informal language usage; conversational
Colloquialism (noun)
 - "Hi" and "what's up?" are colloquial expressions for "hello" and "how are you?"
 - A "close call" is a colloquialism for a "narrow escape."
5. Diminutive (noun) A suffix that indicates small size, youth, familiarity, affection or contempt;
A nickname indicating affection or familiarity.
(adjective) Extremely small; tiny
 - 1) Two common diminutives are -ette and -let. 2) Did you know that Peggy is a diminutive of Margaret?
 - The diminutive dollhouse furniture enchanted the youngsters.
6. Metonymy (noun) A figure of speech that substitutes a word with a different but closely associated word.
Metonymic (adjective)
 - The sentence "Washington's official response was negative" includes a metonymy; the word Washington is substituted for the U.S. government.
 - The metonymic expression "the hand that rocks the cradle" refers to a mother.
7. Oxymoron (noun) An expression that contains contradictory terms
Oxymoronic (adjective)
 - A common oxymoron is "jumbo shrimp."
 - Two examples of oxymoronic expressions are "good grief" and "fresh frozen."
8. Palindrome (noun) A word or expression that is spelled the same backward and forward.
 - The words rotor and civic are palindromes.
9. Portmanteau word (noun) A word formed by combining sounds and meanings of two different words.
 - Chunnel, a portmanteau word formed from channel and tunnel, is the name for the tunnel that runs underneath the English Channel.
10. Spoonerism (noun) An often comical switching of the first sounds of two or more words.
 - "Lack of pies" is a spoonerism for "pack of lies."