

Boston Light

The Boston Light was the first light station established on the North American continent. The light was lit for the first time on September 14, 1716. A cannon was America's first fog signal. The Boston Light was destroyed in the Revolution and rebuilt in 1783. The Boston Light is also our only lighthouse that still has an official keeper.