Visual development, cause and effect, attention span, and language development

Color and cut out the pictures on this page. Hold up a picture and encourage your child to look around the house for the matching object. For example, "This is a bed. Can you show me your bed?" Once your little learner leads you to her bed, reward her with lots of praise. Repeat this for each picture.

Play a simplified game of hide and seek. First, pretend that you cannot see your child. Say, "Where's (baby's name)?" Then "find" your child. Babies love this game and usually smile, giggle, and clap when they are found.
