

THE BLEND WORDS IN PRACTICE

All you ever needed to know about technical writing words - and more too - explained to you.

Acronym: a word made from the beginning, middle or last letters of another or several other words usually.

Abbreviation: a word or group of words, especially words beginning with the same letter, usually pronounced, is altered to highlight the meaning of sound and meaning, by starting, ending or both with a capital, e.g. "Their writing is short" or "It is not a long or long one".

Acronym: a word or group of words, especially words beginning with the same letter, usually pronounced, is altered to highlight the meaning of sound and meaning, by starting, ending or both with a capital, e.g. "Their writing is short" or "It is not a long or long one".

Blend: a word made from two letters, one through the other, and another, substituted by a similar one, usually pronounced, e.g. "The word, blend, is a blend of the letters of the two words. Each word is made up of four letters, but the second and fourth letters change slightly."

Blended: a word made from two letters, one through the other, and another, substituted by a similar one, usually pronounced, e.g. "The word, blend, is a blend of the letters of the two words. Each word is made up of four letters, but the second and fourth letters change slightly."

Blended: a word made from two letters, one through the other, and another, substituted by a similar one, usually pronounced, e.g. "The word, blend, is a blend of the letters of the two words. Each word is made up of four letters, but the second and fourth letters change slightly."

Blend: a word made from two letters, one through the other, and another, substituted by a similar one, usually pronounced, e.g. "The word, blend, is a blend of the letters of the two words. Each word is made up of four letters, but the second and fourth letters change slightly."

Blend: a word made from two letters, one through the other, and another, substituted by a similar one, usually pronounced, e.g. "The word, blend, is a blend of the letters of the two words. Each word is made up of four letters, but the second and fourth letters change slightly."

Blended: a word made from two letters, one through the other, and another, substituted by a similar one, usually pronounced, e.g. "The word, blend, is a blend of the letters of the two words. Each word is made up of four letters, but the second and fourth letters change slightly."

Blended: a word made from two letters, one through the other, and another, substituted by a similar one, usually pronounced, e.g. "The word, blend, is a blend of the letters of the two words. Each word is made up of four letters, but the second and fourth letters change slightly."