

Stratocumulus Clouds

are low, puffy lines or waves of clouds that usually form at altitudes below 6000 feet. Light to dark gray in color, stratocumulus clouds produce little or no rain, but they can indicate a coming storm.

