

THE USE OF HAS – HAVE – HAD

The verbs has, have, had can be used not only as helping verbs but also as full verbs. They express possession or ownership.

Examples:

- She has four kids.
- My mom has a great teacher.
- We have a lot of money.

HAS – Used with singular nouns and pronouns, usually in a present tense.

- She has a boyfriend.

HAVE – Used with plural nouns and pronouns, usually in a present tense.

- They have a vacation home.

Examples used to give a hint that may show ownership:

- She has had a long relationship with him.

Also used in a form of questioning like:

- "How has it been?" "How are you?" "How is it?"

It is also used with the present perfect form

- She has lived in New York.

- My dad has a better car.

HAD – In the past tense of both the verb form, used in the past tense. It may be used in both singular and plural forms of nouns and pronouns, the present tense and I.

Examples:

- She had a car.

- They had their Halloween party last month.