CHOOSING RESOURCES FOR INFORMATION

RESOURCES YOU NEED TO KNOW

An almanac is a book of facts that is printed at the beginning of each year. It will give you important facts or information about the events of that year. Some information in almanacs is in the form of tables, graphs, or charts.

An atlas contains maps of the world or of certain regions. It may contain road maps or highway maps and is used by many people to plan trips by car.

A dictionary gives meanings of words, the correct spelling and pronunciation of words, and shows how a word is divided into syllables.

An encyclopedia is a set of books with information, usually in alphabetical order. There are general encyclopedias with general information about all topics, and there are special encyclopedias that have information about a specific topic.
