

PROSPERITY, REBELLION, AND REFORM (1945 - 1980)

Objective: To examine the circumstances surrounding the Little Rock Nine and the formation of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

Integrated schools:

- The 1954 Supreme Court Case of Brown v. BOE of Topeka, KS, outlawed segregated schools.
- In 1957, the Board of Education of Little Rock, Arkansas, attempted to comply with the Brown ruling by admitting nine black students to Central High School.
- These students became known as the Little Rock Nine.
- However, the governor of Arkansas, Orval Faibus, opposed integration.
- Governor Faibus called out the National Guard in order to prevent the Little Rock Nine from attending previously all-white Central High School.
- By refusing to enforce the Brown decision, Faibus was violating federal law.

The Little Rock Nine - Bottom Row, Left to Right: Thelma Mothershead, Minnijean Brown, Elizabeth Eckford, Gloria Ray; Top Row, Left to Right: Jefferson Thomas, Melba Pattillo, Terrence Roberts, Carlotta Walls, Daisy Bates (NAACP President), Ernest Green

Arkansas Governor Orval Faibus protests the admission of the "Little Rock Nine" to Central High School. (Little Rock, AR, August 20, 1959)

PROSPERITY, REBELLION, AND REFORM (1945 - 1980)

Objective: To examine the circumstances surrounding the Little Rock Nine and the formation of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

Integrated schools:

- The 1954 Supreme Court Case of _____ v. _____ of _____, KS, outlawed _____ schools.
- In 1957, the Board of Education of Little Rock, Arkansas, attempted to comply with the Brown ruling by admitting _____ black students to _____.
- These students became known as the _____.
- However, the governor of Arkansas, _____, opposed integration.
- Governor Faibus called out the _____ in order to prevent the Little Rock Nine from attending previously all-white Central High School.
- By refusing to enforce the Brown decision, Faibus was _____ federal law.

The Little Rock Nine - Bottom Row, Left to Right: Thelma Mothershead, Minnijean Brown, Elizabeth Eckford, Gloria Ray; Top Row, Left to Right: Jefferson Thomas, Melba Pattillo, Terrence Roberts, Carlotta Walls, Daisy Bates (NAACP President), Ernest Green

Arkansas Governor Orval Faibus protests the admission of the "Little Rock Nine" to Central High School. (Little Rock, AR, August 20, 1959)