

A hand-drawn diagram illustrating the difference between two circles. The first circle on the left has a vertical line drawn through its center. The second circle on the right has a horizontal line drawn through its center. A minus sign is placed between the two circles, and an equals sign is placed to the right of the second circle. To the right of the equals sign is a single vertical line, representing the result of the operation.

