

Indian police officers flag-shaming couples

People are shocked because of reports about their government attacking or trying women on a date. The attack happened in the southern Indian state of Kerala. These incidents came with no reason with no boyfriend or a partner. This attack was part of a police campaign named "Operation Romeo." The campaign targeted by stamping out kissing in public. Women's groups and students are attacking in Kerala and Delhi. The protesters want an immediate end to attacks on young lovers.

The couple disappeared after their faces were revealed on television. The protesters have suddenly become famous. Indian people are both shocked at the leading and concerned about the safety of the couple. An angry Kerala resident said, "Walking in love is wrong?" Why are police attacking couples in India?"
