Bill of Rights Day

Thank You, Ancient Greece!

The United States was not the first country to give rights to its citizens.

Many people know that the Bill of Rights in the United States Constitution gives rights to the people. It also controls the power of the government. But did you know that the concept of people's rights goes back to the ancient Greeks? More than 2,500 years ago, the rulers of Greece wanted to make sure that no one person or group became too powerful. They began to give rights to the people. Free Greek men were allowed the right to form crews to sail and even had the right to vote.

America's founders took ideas from older documents in use around the world. James Madison used ideas from the English Bill of Rights as well as the Virginia Declaration of Rights.

In America, Bill of Rights Day is observed on December 15. This is the anniversary of the day the first ten amendments were added to the Constitution.
