

Aztec Calendar

The Aztecs were an advanced civilization that ruled a large empire in central Mexico. They developed a very accurate calendar, much like the calendar we use today. Their calendar had 365 days in a year, just like our calendar. The Aztec calendar was divided into cycles of time. The Aztecs believed that events would repeat themselves every fifty-two years.

Teachers: Add your own math problems to the calendar. Children can color the calendar after their work is completed.