

Spanish: Direct, Indirect, and Reflexive Pronouns

Direct Object Pronouns

me	me	nos	us
te	you (familiar)	os	you (familiar plural, Spain)
lo	you (formal), him, it masculine	los	you (familiar and formal), them masculine
la	you (formal), her, it feminine	las	you (familiar and formal), them feminine

- Direct objects are the receiver of the action and answer the question “who” or “what” in reference to the verb.
Hilda lee el libro. Los niños comen la fruta. Él compra la cerveza.
- If the direct object is a person, a group of persons, or a pet, then the personal a must precede it. The words a and el together contract to al.
María baña al bebe. Antonio ve a sus niños. Yo oigo a mi madre.
- The direct object pronoun replaces the direct object noun to avoid repeating the direct object and is placed before the verb.
Hilda lo lee. Los niños la comen. Él la compra.
- In the case of compound verb forms, the direct object pronoun may go either before the conjugated verb or attached to the infinitive form of the verb or the present participle. Upon attaching the reflexive pronoun to the present participle, an accent mark must be added to the stressed vowel.
Vamos a ver a ella. Alicia quiere ver a él. Estoy limpiando los espejos.
La vamos a ver. Alicia lo quiere ver. Los estoy limpiando.
Vamos a verla. Alicia quiere verlo. Estoy limpiandolos.

Replace the direct object with the direct object pronoun, translating English to Spanish.

- 1.) Tu primo veo a nosotros. _____
- 2.) Mi tío visita a mi. _____
- 3.) Ella visita a su amigo hoy. _____
- 4.) Enrique toca la guitarra. _____
- 5.) Sus parientes entienden la situación. _____
- 6.) Tu sobrino cierra la puerta del microondas. _____