

Idioms—words or phrases that mean something completely different than their literal meaning.

Example: "Tie the knot" literally does not mean to tie a knot, but is actually used to describe two people who are getting married.

Example: "Shake a leg" literally does not mean to shake your leg, but is used to tell someone to hurry up!

Idioms

- Lead me your ears
- Shake a leg
- The apple of my eye
- The sky is the limit
- Tie the knot
- Couch potato
- Bite off more than you can chew
- Barking up the wrong tree
- Spill the beans

Idioms

- A piece of cake
- Play it by ear
- Out of the blue
- I'm all ears
- The icing on the cake
- Hold your horses
- Achilles' Heel
- A bull in a china shop
- An arm and a leg
- Bite your tongue
- Break a leg
- Head over heels
- On the fence
- Spitting image
- Two peas in a pod
- Under the weather
- Wear your heart on your sleeve
- A chip off the old block
- In a pickle
- A shot in the dark
- All in the same boat
- Beat around the bush
- Bend over backwards
- It's a small world