

What will the future bring? From time immemorial this question has occupied men's minds, though not always to the same degree. It is chiefly in times of physical, emotional, economic, and spiritual distress that men's eyes turn with anxious hope towards the future, and when anticipations, utopias and apocalyptic visions multiply.

C. G. Jung, The Undiscovered Self