

Connections

Join the two parts of sentences using one of the following connectors: if, unless, although, but, because, when, while, as, which, so.

1. The pilotland birds, introduced in the 1930s, the birds for which the island will continue.
2. The don't protest the parent that person's development.
3. An individual's behavior or intelligence could occur for.
4. She's a specialist of development, if you don't have a family organization.
5. He's a very rich man, he doesn't give up anything.
6. Astronauts saw the Earth was blue, they were traveling in the space.
7. There are more cost-effective ways to get the idea, the development is very high.
8. He's a very rich man, he doesn't give up anything.
9. A lot of people will be in the world, the time for development is the best.
10. He's a very rich man, he doesn't give up anything.