

Multiple choice and factual recall questions

Use words as indicators

What is the correct formula for calculating the circumference of a circle?
Circumference = 2πr (where r is the radius)
What are the angles in a right-angled triangle?
They are 90 degrees, and the other two angles add up to 90 degrees.

Spotting contradictions

John said that he had never been to the beach before.
Last week, he went to the beach with his family.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.

Spotting contradictions

John said that he had never been to the beach before.
Last week, he went to the beach with his family.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.

Spotting phrases and questions

John said that he had never been to the beach before.
Last week, he went to the beach with his family.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.

John said that he had never been to the beach before.
Last week, he went to the beach with his family.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.

John said that he had never been to the beach before.
Last week, he went to the beach with his family.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.

John said that he had never been to the beach before.
Last week, he went to the beach with his family.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.

John said that he had never been to the beach before.
Last week, he went to the beach with his family.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.
John said that he had never been to the beach before.