1.

There is no use of verb conjugations, grammatical case of the language, no translations, and little if any analysis of grammar rules and syntax. The focus of the lesson is on good pronunciation, often introducing students to phrases and words before they are studied in any context.

2.

This method aims at helping students select the appropriate phrases and structures to express their thoughts, feelings and wishes. The teacher doesn't repeat the material for students; the phrases that the students use to express, and there is no use of the learner's native language. However, usually vocabulary and structure guides for pronunciation are provided to the teacher to guide the student's understanding when using the first second language.

3.

This method is based on the idea that the mind has great potential and can obtain information by the power of suggestion. This teaching method uses techniques as a result of relaxing techniques.
