Resources We Need

Once upon a time, people could not walk to the store to buy groceries, or order a product online to help clean their home. Once upon a time, people had to grow their own food, make their own clothing, create their own form of heat. What they used to perform these tasks is what is called natural resources. Today, people are still dependent on resources from the land in order to live. This is why it is very important that we treat our Earth with respect, keep it clean, and replenish the resources that we consume, so that they are here for future generations to use.

What types of land resources do we still use today, and for what purposes? Some examples are oil, wood, minerals, stone, plants.

Directions: Think about the natural land resources our earth provides. Choose 3 land resources and write about what these resources are used for by people today. How can we be sure they are still here for future generations?
