

Post-Test WRITTEN

Identify the type of irony in each scenario. Dramatic, verbal, and situational.

1. When Laurel went to practice archery, she missed the target every time she shot. She was so frustrated that she decided to give up and buy a gun. She had her first shot hit the bullseye. "That's the beauty of practice," she thought.

_____

2. When Laurel went to practice archery, she missed the target every time she shot. She was so frustrated that she decided to give up and buy a gun. She had her first shot hit the bullseye. "That's the beauty of practice," she thought. "I wish I could practice hitting the target in real life too."

_____

3. When Laurel went to practice archery, she missed the target every time she shot. She was so frustrated that she decided to give up and buy a gun. She had her first shot hit the bullseye. "That's the beauty of practice," she thought. "I wish I could practice hitting the target in real life too."

_____

4. When Laurel went to practice archery, she missed the target every time she shot. She was so frustrated that she decided to give up and buy a gun. She had her first shot hit the bullseye. "That's the beauty of practice," she thought. "I wish I could practice hitting the target in real life too."

_____

5. When Laurel went to practice archery, she missed the target every time she shot. She was so frustrated that she decided to give up and buy a gun. She had her first shot hit the bullseye. "That's the beauty of practice," she thought. "I wish I could practice hitting the target in real life too."

_____

6. When Laurel went to practice archery, she missed the target every time she shot. She was so frustrated that she decided to give up and buy a gun. She had her first shot hit the bullseye. "That's the beauty of practice," she thought. "I wish I could practice hitting the target in real life too."

_____