Senior Essay Brainstorming Worksheet—Classes

On these two worksheets you will brainstorm the content that you will put into the first two parts of the essay: the CLASSES and the ACTIVITIES sections.

It helps if you have a copy of your high school transcript handy to do the classes brainstorm.

Let's begin!

Classes:

In the tables below, brainstorm classes that you have taken in high school that have STUCK OUT TO YOU (for good or evil! ☺) or in which you realized something about yourself. Fill out the table below to the best of your ability right now. You can always go back and fill in things later.

GOAL: have at least THREE classes as examples for each grade level. That way, you don't look wimpy!

Note: Remember, the "what I learned" part is not a list that reads "In math, I learned math, equations, etc." While you hopefully DID learn those things, we are more after what you learned about yourself or others here. Also remember that the lessons don't always have to be positive—maybe flunking taught you something?
