Making a Move to My State

Add one more person to your state's population! The character below has decided to move to your state. Why? Because of its fabulous geographical features!

Directions: Pretend that the character below has decided to move to your state because of its geography. Fill in the speech and thought bubbles with reasons this person might give for moving to your state. (Use the list of topics to help you.) Then draw physical features and clothing on the character. Also add props that represent something about your state's geography.

Bonus Box: Work with a partner who has also finished this activity. Compare your two characters. How are their reasons for moving to your state alike? How are they different?
