| $\int$                       | Name Date                                                                                                                                     |
|------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| $\begin{cases} \end{cases}$  | READING SYLLABLES                                                                                                                             |
| $\left\{ \right $            | Words are made up of parts called syllables. Each syllables has a vowel sound. A fun way to count syllables is to clap as you read each word. |
| $\langle$                    | bat = 1 clap = 1 syllables bucket = 2 clap = 3syllables                                                                                       |
| $\left\langle \right\rangle$ | umbrella = 3 clap = 3 syllables                                                                                                               |
| $\{$                         | Read each word as you clap the syllables. Write the number of syllables each word has.                                                        |
| $\langle$                    | monster basket math                                                                                                                           |
| $\langle$                    | butterfly strawberry reading                                                                                                                  |
|                              | winter watermelon swimming                                                                                                                    |
|                              | sister lemon afternoon                                                                                                                        |
|                              | family apple football                                                                                                                         |
|                              | rabbit elephant playground                                                                                                                    |
|                              | basketball fan yesterday                                                                                                                      |