

RESEARCH AND ANALYSIS OF THE POLITICAL SYSTEM

The political system is a complex of institutions and processes that govern a state. It is the structure and process of decision-making in a state, which is the primary concern of political science. The political system is a system of power and authority, which is the primary concern of political science. The political system is a system of power and authority, which is the primary concern of political science.

The political system is a system of power and authority, which is the primary concern of political science. The political system is a system of power and authority, which is the primary concern of political science. The political system is a system of power and authority, which is the primary concern of political science.